JEFFERSON DAVIS Wrote only a few chapters of his autobiography, but left all the necessary data for its completion which will be collated by Mrs. Davis with the assistance of a few intimate friends of the ex-President. Mrs. Davis says that she hopes to be able to portray some of the noblest and subtlest traits of character of her husband which have not been so generally understood. The South will wait impatiently for the book, giving an account of his illustrons and remarkable career. Perhaps no one is better fitted to finish the work on his autoblography than she who was his companion amid his brightest days and a loving attendant at his death bed. She doubtless can give the brightest aspects of his pure character.

THE South is not only richer in the agregate than it was ten years ago, but carefully prepared statistics in a special issue of the Tradesman show that it is richer per capita. The improvement is not restricted to any one State or district, but it is found on careful investigation that the wealth has been well distributed throughout the whole section. If we advance in the next ten years as we have done in the past ten, our progress will be something marvelons. No year in the last decade has closed without leaving us as a people richer than the preceding one. Our increase of wealth is due mainly to the development of new railroads, natural resources, factories and the opening of mines, but there has been an increase in the value of lands. We | cares Brown's Iron Bitters now average $195.33 per capita against rebuilds the system, aids digestion, removes excess of bile, and cures malaria. Get the genuine.

It seems that Florida is on the eve of another boom. At first she enjoyed the orange boom, then the climate boom, and now we are told that the phosphate boom is something approaching the gold craze in California when Sutton discovered the precious metal in his mill-race. Beneath the sandy surface of this gulf-streamformed peninsular vast beds of phosphate rock have been discovered and fifty cents an acre six months ago are started yet.

Operation of Protection.

The operation of protection, from the protectionists standpoint, was plainly shown in the testimony given before the Ways and Means committee in Washington on the day the sugar tariff was being discussed.

Among others ex-Governor Warmoul, of Louisiana, the largest sugar planter in that State, appeared in the interests of a protective tariff for sugar. Mr. Warmoth does not want a bounty for the reason that the people of the country would not submit to the annual draft on the treasury, which is filled from the pockets of sixty millions of people, to support the comparatively few who are engaged in the production of sugar. He says "a demand will arise for its abolition" (the bounty) "that cannot be resisted." In other words, if the people are made to realize the great fraud and injustice of protection, they will overturn the power that perpetrates it.

About eleven hundred people own sugar plantations in Louisiana and they employ some half a million hands and the fifty-nine and a half millions who use sugar are asked to pay half a cent a pound more for the sugar they use in order to enable the balf million to raise it.

Again we are told that Louisiana furnishes only one-eighth of the sugar consumed in the United States, so that the housekeeper who uses eight pounds of sugar pays our Louisiana friends nalf a cent and a tax on the foreign produced sugar of three and a half
